

Rail Strike Fate Up To U.S. Board

Big Chiefs of Unions Assemble in Chicago to Confer With Rail Board

PENNSYLVANIA STANDS PAT

Government Stops All Else to Await Conference Outcome—Ready to Act

New York—While expressing confidence that the railroad strike set for Oct. 30 would be halted, railroaders in many parts of the country Thursday advertised for men to take the places of their regular workers in case they walked out.

All reported an eager response by men out of work.

Several railroads near New York reported college boys and wealthy commuters who ran trains during the "outlaw" strike had again volunteered for service.

By Carl Victor Little

Chicago—Brotherhood chiefs in a conference Thursday which ended shortly before they were to meet the United States railroad labor board decided there would be no postponement of the railroad strike called for Oct. 30.

"In our conference with the railroad labor board our difficulties with executives must be finally settled, or the strike will go on as scheduled," said T. C. Cashen, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America. "There will be no postponement of the strike we have called."

The Pennsylvania railroad again defied the power of the United States labor board Thursday just as the board was prepared to enter into negotiations with the union head in an attempt to avert the Oct. 30 strike.

Board Action Unlawful

Representatives of the Pennsylvania, summoned to show why the road should not be declared in violation of the board's orders, declared the action of the labor body in ordering election of representatives to negotiate with officials on working rules, was unlawful and illegal.

The attorney spent less than ten minutes in presenting the road's case. He declared the board's order tended to encourage the following:

1. Closed shop strikes.
2. Sympathetic strikes.
3. Limitation of output.

N. P. Gordon, representing the labor department of the American Federation of Labor told the board that if it did not make the Pennsylvania obey its rules, the 500,000 members of the shop workers union would be called out on strike.

hearing opened, chiefs of the five big brotherhoods, summoned by the labor board to hear President Harding's proposal for calling off the strike, were confronted with the three representatives of labor on the board.

Two Propositions Up

According to best information, the proposition to be submitted to the union heads, included a promise that President Harding would work for legislation which the unions desired, in case they recalled their strike order.

A similar proposition was understood to be ready for presentation to the railroads—that if they would bow down on their strike order and abide by the railroad board's decisions the administration would be prepared to hurry through the railroad refunding bill and would work for repeal of the Adamson law.

Chiefs of the powerful railroad brotherhoods who have called a strike for Oct. 30 came to Chicago Thursday to hear President Harding's peace plans.

The "big five" whose 500,000 members carry strike orders in their pockets, were summoned here from Cleveland, where they were holding a war council, to appear before the United States railroad labor board.

Washington—Government officials Thursday settled down to watch and wait for developments in the railroad strike situation.

If the conference in Chicago brings about a recognition by the unions of the board's right to order wage reductions, one big step toward preventing the walkout will have been taken, officials said.

It was considered likely here that the board would assure the brotherhood heads that if they would withdraw their strike order and thereby acknowledge the board's authority, that a similar effort would be made to have the railroad executives reconsider their position on a rate cut. Rate reductions by the interstate commerce commission are expected shortly.

In congress there was evident a growing determination to do something to give the labor board or some government agency real authority to deal with such situations as the present. If the conference discloses that authority is lacking.

900 MEAT WORKERS LEAVE IOWA PLANT

Ottumwa, Iowa.—Nine hundred men and women packing house employees of the Morrell Packing company are out on strike here Thursday, following disagreements over working conditions and wages of women in the trimline departments.

The plant was closed by John Morrell owner, the remaining 400 workers being thrown out of work. It will be opened again when sufficient workers are available, Morrell said.

WATER BOARD IS RETAINED BY ALDERMEN

Council Refuses to Adopt Ordinance Abolishing Water Commission

PRAISE PLANT EFFICIENCY

Desire to Retain Aldermanic Powers Prompts Fight Against Commission

Appleton's water department will continue to be governed by commission, at least as long as the present common council exists. The effort to abolish the water commission and place the water department under the direct control and supervision of the council was defeated 8 to 4 Wednesday evening after a spirited discussion in which it was agreed that the water department has been most efficiently handled and economically managed.

The decision to reject the proposed ordinance providing for abolition of the commission was reached by the council meeting as a "committee of the whole." Members of the commission were present to tell what has been done to advance reasons for retention of the commission. J. J. Plank, whose term as commissioner expired, was unanimously re-elected.

The fight for abolition of the commission was led by Mayor J. A. Hawes and Alderman A. W. Laabs, who did most of the talking for opponents of the present plan. Aldermen Hanson, Smith, Wood and Lappen were leaders in the debate opposing Laabs and the mayor.

Jealous of Powers

Laabs contended that inasmuch as the aldermen are elected to conduct the city's affairs they should operate all the city's properties and not delegate their powers to other citizens. He said the council is fully as competent to operate the water department as citizen members of the commission and declared the practice of the council to turn over the management of the water department to the commission.

Broker Is Arrested After He Attempts to Bribe Prohibition Officer

New York.—Search for a wealthy bootlegging gang which has obtained millions of dollars worth of liquor through false withdrawal permits was begun Thursday following arrest of Samuel Albrecht, a general merchandise broker of Baltimore.

Albrecht was arrested, charged with an attempt to bribe Green Miller, chief assistant to Prohibition Enforcement Director Yellowley. He is alleged to have offered $200 to inspect withdrawal permits issued in Yellowley's office.

He was arraigned in federal court and held in $7,500 bail for hearing Nov. 2.

STOCKYARDS ARE PLACED UNDER U. S. SUPERVISION

As the result of an investigation the secretary held that these yards came within the provisions of the packer control law, recently passed by congress.

RAIL BOARD'S POWER SURE TO AVERT STRIKE

Harding's Order to Call Both Sides to Task Appears Right Course

FREIGHT CUT SURE TO COME

Fair and Fearless Rail Board Decisions Expected to Mold Public Opinion

By David Lawrence

(Copyright, 1921 by Post Pub. Co.)

Washington.—President Harding has determined to make the United States railroad board so important that when it hands down a decision saying either side in a controversy is wrong the full weight of public opinion will bring the necessary pressure to bear to compel obedience to the mandate of the board.

This was the original idea of congress in creating the railroad labor board and the first challenge to the power of the board has developed. Executive influence has saved what might otherwise have been a steady collapse of the whole structure erected by Congress. Mr. Harding has made it clear that he wants the railroad labor board to go ahead and call both sides to task.

Mr. Harding's course will unquestionably prevent a strike for neither the railroads nor the labor leaders would be able to complete successfully against a formal decision as to who was right or wrong. Both sides privately will admit that.

Must Play Fair

Mr. Harding believes the railroad labor board will play fair with both sides and that it must be just as ready to chastise a big institution like the Pennsylvania railroad as a railway union.

Mr. Harding isn't showing any partiality to either side—he isn't actually interfering in the details of the controversy. He keeps on pointing out that congress has created the labor board to settle disputes and that both sides should play fair.

Mr. Harding feels that the calling of a strike is largely a mischievous game of something that may or may not materialize. The president is confident that when the labor board formally calls upon each side to behave there will be no more flouting of the authority of the railroad board. The labor chiefs have been watching to see whether the labor board had any real power behind it. When they saw the Pennsylvania railroad ignore the decisions of the board they were prompted to do likewise.

Freight Cut Coming

Incidentally there's a reduction in freight rates coming. The White House can't say officially but every sign points to it. There are some cases pending in the interstate commerce commission involving rates on hardwood lumber, grain and grain products which may remove a large part of the 25 per cent increase granted last year. The railroads have made voluntary cuts in handling export grain, livestock, oil and building materials and it is estimated that practically all of the $400,000,000 wage cut will be offset by freight rate reductions within the next fortnight. Then it will be a question of whether the increased income of the railroads due to low freight rates will enable them to take care of their operating expenses or whether further wage cuts are necessary in order that the roads may be run at a profit to their stockholders. Earnings of the roads have picked up in recent months and one set of statisticians is busy showing how the cut in wages made it possible while another set argues that the increased business the roads are doing really is responsible for the better financial showing. When rates are further reduced, it is expected that disinterested analysis will have no trouble in finding out which claim is correct.

Meanwhile a precedent has been established by President Harding in bringing the United States railroad labor board into conference informally with the interstate commerce commission. It breaks the ice and makes it possible to have further conferences.

Milwaukee.—A band of twenty gypsies, seemingly well supplied with money, were confined in the city jail here Wednesday on complaint of William Shafar, who alleged he was robbed of $2,500 by members of the band.

Shafar alleged they took the money while he was having his fortune told. After protesting their innocence, the gypsies refunded the money and paid a fine of $100.

NO DANGER OF FAMINE IN CITY IF RAILMEN STRIKE

If the threatened railroad strike be a reality, Appleton will have enough foodstuffs on hand to feed its people at least four months, according to information obtained Wednesday from wholesalers and retailers who are in close touch with the city's commissary.

Discontinuance of rail transportation service, it was pointed out, comes at a time when wholesalers and retailers are well stocked with staple food necessities so the optimistic opinion is that Appleton will not lack plenty of food to carry the people through a prolonged railroad strike. That there may be a lack of luxuries is readily admitted and people may have to get along without a few conveniences for a time but as far as real hardship is concerned, it is unlikely.

Dealers in foodstuffs feel sure of an adequate supply of staples such as potatoes, canned goods, winter vegetables, flour, sugar, dairy products. There might be a shortage of some kinds of meat but it is believed the city could receive an adequate supply of this from surrounding farms for some time.

No Potato Famine

A famine in potatoes is impossible here, dealers declare. White potato growing is not an agricultural specialty in this county the production is large enough to feed the population for a long time. And should this supply be exhausted, the dealers say, neighboring counties with a surplus could readily furnish thousands of bushels for transportation here by motor truck.

According to a trade custom, storehouses in Appleton are better stocked with canned goods now than at any other time of the year. It is customary for wholesalers and retailers to order their year's supply, or as much of it as can be taken care of, in the summer for early fall delivery. Commitments of these goods have already arrived and are now here in storage. Although the amount being held by the various dealers varies in quantity, it is estimated that the aggregate supply would tide the city over a period of six months and give every man, woman and child all the canned food that could be desirable, or advisable, for them to eat.

Winter vegetables such as onions, cabbages, carrots, beets, squash, turnips, rutabagas, and so on have just recently been harvested and housed throughout the county and no doubt is felt that the supply of this kind of food will be more than adequate in the event of a long strike. Local wholesalers who deal in these vegetables have large stocks in storage and can readily obtain more on short notice, they declare.

Get Sugar Easily

Any misgivings that are being entertained are in regard to the available supply of flour and sugar. The supply of sugar now in Appleton would last only three weeks at the most, as near as could be learned by a comparison of estimates of several dealers. But should a railroad strike last longer than that it is pointed out that the Green Bay sugar refinery could supply this part of the state with all the sugar required and transportation by truck over concrete highways would be a simple and easy matter.

More concern is felt in the event the present supply of flour should be exhausted. While there are four mills in Appleton, Green Bay, DePere and Oshkosh, it is well known that DePere is not a wheat growing section and local mills depend almost entirely upon shipments from the west for their flour. During the last few weeks a declining market in wheat and flour has not encouraged millers to buy heavily. Caught in this situation by a railroad strike, it is believed that only by close conservation could the people be assured an adequate supply of bread for any prolonged time.

As to dairy products, a railroad strike would work more hardship to the producers of the county than to the consumers. The question would then be how to get the article to market rather than of bringing it here from market. Outagamie county produces more milk, butter and cheese than can be consumed here and the wealth

WILL AID JOBLESS AND U. S. FARMERS

Governors and Railroad Commissioners Plan Program in Iowa Conference

Des Moines, Iowa.—Governors and railroad commissioners representing eight midwest states, were pledged to work for legislation which they believe will relieve the farmers' financial troubles and aid in reducing unemployment.

Measures for which they will work include:

1. Amendment of the Esch-Cummins transportation act to allow the states to lower intrastate rates and service.
2. Lowering of freight rates 25 to 40 per cent to lighten unemployment burdens, promote building and relieve farmers who are paying two thirds of their returns to send their crops to market.
3. Quick settlement of the western grain rate case, which vitally affects grain growers of 25 western states, and is now before the interstate commerce commission.
4. Reduction of interest rates to five per cent by federal reserve banks in the agriculture district to tide farmers over the present stringency.

President Harding's disarmament conference will do much to relieve the world of the burden of oppressive military establishments, the executives declared in a resolution.

DEMOCRAT LEADER'S SON DEAD FROM ASPHYXIA

Minneapolis.—Elmer M. Wheaton, 30, son of Fred E. Wheaton, Democratic national committeeman from Minnesota, was found dead in his home here Wednesday night. His wife found his body on the kitchen floor. Two gas jets of the stove were open. A box of cartridges and a gun were found on the table, but no bullet wounds were found on the body. His father is seriously ill at a hospital here.

The accused minister was the last regular defense witness on the stand during examination of him continue when court opened.

Questions regarding the race and nationality of Pedro Guesman, who married to Ruth Stephenson, the preacher's daughter precipitated tragedy, occupied Stephenson's stay on the witness stand.

"Is Pedro Guesman a negro?" A torney John Morrow asked.

"He impresses me as being a negro," the minister replied.

"Do you know for sure that he is a negro?" The witness hesitated and answered in the negative.

"Didn't you tell Father Coyne you have married my daughter to a negro?" Morrow asked.

Stephenson said those were not his words but he had said "something like that."

Morrow asked whether Stephenson had not walked into the parish house yard, went up the steps and killed Father Coyne without warning.

The minister was prepared for a terrific cross examination on his story of Wednesday of how he and his wife had pleaded in vain for their daughter to return to them and how he shot Father Coyne in self defense after he had been knocked down and kicked.

Wants A Man Who Will Stay Home Nights

By United Press Leased Wire

Chicago.—Mrs. Georgia Hamon, widow of the Oklahoma oil millionaire who was shot to death by Clara Smith Hamon, wants a homely man, who likes his slippers and an open fire at night.

She said so Thursday when asked about rumors she was engaged to F. A. Morrison, a wealthy California mining man.

"Mr. Morrison asked me to marry him, but I refused," she said. "He is too handsome, and too rich. When I marry again, it will be a poor homely man who will stay by his own fire-side."

Mrs. Hamon is seen frequently in company with Morrison who is here attending the national mining convention.

"We have been good friends for many years, but I wouldn't consider him for a husband," she said "he is too attractive."

Attempt to Assassinate Ambassador Herrick in Paris Reveals how Communists Plan to Avenge Coming Death of Murderers Here.

New York.—Reports from European capitals and from South America Thursday indicated the existence of an international communist plot to secure by intimidation the freedom of Nicolo Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Italian communists convicted of a brutal murder of a paymaster and a guard at South Braintree, Mass., July 14.

American ambassadors in Rome, Brussels and London have received threatening letters from communists in those countries. Wednesday an attempt was made to assassinate Ambassador Herrick at Paris by means of a bomb sent through the mails, after he had ignored threats from communists in France.

Franklin communists have sought to influence the press in Rio de Janeiro in favor of a pardon for the convicted murderers at Massachusetts.

New Hearing Planned

Dedham, Mass.—Hearing on a motion for a new trial for Nicolo Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted murderers and avowed radicals, will be held here Saturday morning. It was learned Thursday.

The two Italians, on whose behalf communists throughout the world are alleged to be planning revenge, were tried and convicted in superior court here for the murder of Frederick A. Parmenter, a shoe factory paymaster and a guard, Alessandro Barabelli, who were shot to death in broad daylight in a South Braintree street on April 15, 1920.

Franklin's attempted assassination of Ambassador Herrick led to uproarious scenes and indescribable tumult in the French chamber of deputies Thursday.

Arrests are imminent in connection with the bomb outrage at Ambassador Herrick's residence it was announced Thursday, after a nationwide dragnet of police and special detectives had been flung out in search of the perpetrators.

The communists disclaim responsibility for the attempted assassination of the ambassador, in which his British valet was wounded, announced Thursday their intention of continuing the campaign to free Sacco and Vanzetti.

Ambassador Herrick went to the embassy as usual today and Thursday afternoon played golf, refusing the services of personal guards.

General Pershing was closely guarded as he left Thursday for Cherbourg.

Communists attacked the American consulate at Brest, breaking windows.

A huge communist demonstration Sunday will be arranged at a meeting of the "committee of action" Thursday night, the Internationale official communist organ announced Thursday.

Search for Bombers

Search for the perpetrators of the outrage, in which a small bomb, enclosed in a perfume box, was sent to the American ambassador and opened by the valet, who was wounded, was conducted throughout Paris and the entire country by official orders.

Official France: Millerand and Premier Briand Thursday sent personal representatives to call and express their sympathy and congratulations upon his escape.

Blanchard, the ambassador's personal valet, who opened the package, heard a click and at the last minute hurled it from him thus saving his life, but was slightly wounded, fragments of the bomb striking him in the thigh. He passed a good night and the splinters were removed Thursday.

Plan Mass Meeting

A monster mass meeting was planned for Friday at the Salle Wagram, at which communists and syndicalists were urged to attend and protest "because the revolutionaries Sacco and Vanzetti have been sentenced to death."

"Capitalist society is always pitiless to workers," the poster advertising the meeting continued. "We must meet to protest against the ignominious sentence to protect our comrades and to prevent the execution."

Other prominent Americans besides Herrick have received threatening letters from communists here, the police learned Thursday. One sample letter, sent to many, read: "We will avenge Sacco and Vanzetti by the lives of American residents of Paris."

The valet's quickness in hurling the bomb from him into the bathroom where it burst, shattering the skylight and penetrating the steel

SMOKING CHIMNEYS BELCH MILLIONS OF DOLLARS INTO AIR

Appleton Club Women Consider

Nuisance Here

"Appleton is a dirty city," said Mrs. A. C. Remley in telling of the smoke nuisance in Appleton at the close of the general discussion, "The Smoke Nuisance and What Can Be Done About It" at the meeting of the civics department of Appleton Women's club at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the vocational school. "We have begun to beautify our parks, improve our school systems, pave our streets; we are doing a great deal to beautify Appleton. Yet we are years behind the times in abating the smoke nuisance which makes Appleton a dirty place in which to live and which wastes thousands of dollars yearly. We can estimate the cost of the smoke which goes up the chimney, the cost of the destruction to homes and vegetation, but we cannot estimate the cost in public health, human suffering and death."

Mrs. Remley and her committee, all of whom presented papers on the subject Wednesday, were appointed by the civics department to formulate the best possible plan by which steps may be taken to abate the smoke nuisance in Appleton. Investigations by this committee show that there is no legislation in Appleton which has any reference to chimneys, which belch their dirty and dangerous clouds into the air. A city ordinance

INSTALL TRAFFIC GUIDES AT BUSY STREET CORNERS

Street department workers are installing one of the three mushroom traffic lights recently purchased at the corner of College-ave. and Richmond-st. Its location was determined because of the heavy traffic at that point, and will have the effect of forcing drivers to proceed with greater caution.

The third light will be placed at the College-ave. and State-st. intersection, which also is a dangerous corner. The first one installed at College-ave. and Oneida-st. is proving as effective as the former "silent policeman".

BUILDING SHOULDERS ON BRICKYARD ROAD

Construction of dirt shoulders for the new concrete paving on Brickyard rd. has been started by Greunke brothers, contractors. The road has not been opened officially to traffic, but farmers and others are allowed to use the pavement at their own risk. The contractors are relying on the drivers to proceed slowly and carefully so as not to endanger the workmen, thus enabling the work to go on without blocking the highway. The crew is working rapidly as to have the shoulders completed before heavy frosts occur.

Mrs. J. J. Ellsworth told of the great problem in Pittsburgh which has long been known as the smokiest of smoky cities. She told of the recent attempts of the city to overcome its smoke problem resulting in the appointment of a smoke inspector and a staff of 25 specialists, six of whom give their entire attention to the work.

of the community depends largely on the sale of these products. Here it is believed is the source of real hardship as far as Appleton and neighboring cities are concerned.

No Fresh Fruits
A. C. Schell of Schell Brothers grocery declares that their store has a stock of staple foods which would last a long time. Grocery luxuries such as fresh fruit and vegetables for which the demand has grown enormously in the last two years, could not be obtained Mr. Schell said and in this respect only would the public and the grocer suffer. Twenty per cent of all groceries handled are perishable, said Mr. Schell, and the strike would cut off trade in these articles reducing grocery sales one-fifth. "Of course," Mr. Schell pointed out, "if express service is continued in spite of the strike we could continue to supply our customers with perishables but the cost would be a little more than under present fast freight service. Mr. Schell said that their store could supply its present customers with staple foods for at least four months."

S. C. Shannon, wholesaler, has enough dried fruit and canned goods in storage to supply its customers for 12 months, said H. J. Ingold, manager. Their present supply of sugar will last three weeks. Mr. Ingold said, and then they could transport all they needed from Green Bay by motor truck for the next five months, at least. By Nov. 1, he said, the company would have enough flour in stock to keep retailers supplied one month and the supply of other foodstuffs would fill all orders for the same period.

"If emergency measures are required in the event of a strike," Mr. Ingold said, "our company has two trucks and two teams to turn over for public use to help bring in supplies."

W. C. Fish said his stock of groceries would not last more than two weeks if a strike comes. "We turn over our entire stock often than once a month," he said, "and we could not expect to supply our trade with groceries for any length of time on that account. Of course we always carry a large stock of canned goods and staples and do a large business in perishable fruits and vegetables but our daily sales are so large that we would be cleaned out in a short time. Our sales of fruits amounts to $1,000 weekly and curtailment of this part of our business would be the greatest hardship to our customers and to us."

Don't Fear Strike
William Shapiro of Shapiro Brothers, fruit and produce wholesalers, scouted the possibility of a railroad strike and echoed the opinion of several other dealers. "There will be no strike," Mr. Shapiro said, "and we are not preparing for any. Even if, by the remotest possibility there should be a railroad strike our business would go on as usual and our prices would not go up. We have enough staples on hand to last for months, although there would be a shortage of luxuries in the form of imported fruits and vegetables. I see no need of the people becoming hysterical about a strike. We would not advise anyone to begin stocking up because it would result in a fictitious market and result in hardships to many people at a time when conditions are none too rosy. Of any city in the country, Appleton has the least cause for alarm."

Everybody from the housekeeper to the wholesaler should lay in a large enough supply to last six weeks said Peter Schaefer of Schaefer Brothers. But if the housekeeper does not do this it will be next to impossible for the dealers to provide for an emergency and in case of a long strike, some hardship would result. In any event Mr. Schaefer said, there would be no danger of starvation in Appleton as there is likely to be in large cities. Mr. Schaefer said the supply of staples in their store would last several weeks as he always carries a large reserve stock.

W. B. Basing, agent for the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, and A. W. Liese, agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, gave estimates which show the aggregate of foodstuffs brought weekly to Appleton by the two lines amounts to approximately 240 tons. They said this would vary in different seasons but believed it was a conservative estimate of the tonnage of food consumed here.

This is the first time this has happened in the memory of the dealers who fear for the future when business is almost certain to come with a rush. Other years the majority of people had their annual supply delivered during the summer, but this year this custom was almost entirely ignored.

This has made it impossible for the dealers to get their usual supply for lack of storage facilities. The dealers place their orders for the year in the spring and the coal is shipped during the summer at the rate of 10 per cent a month. Under normal conditions the retailers deliver the coal to the consumers about as fast as it arrives and when cold weather comes small orders are about the only ones that need attention.

No Summer Deliveries
Practically all the dealers were compelled to stop deliveries during the summer for the reason the coal did not move and they were overstocked. This condition extended to the docks which became congested, making it necessary for wholesalers to temporarily stop shipments from the mines. Consequently while both the docks and retail yards are filled with coal it does not mean the supply will last long when the rush commences.

Retail dealers have urged consumers to purchase their coal and avoid delay in delivery when the rush comes, and it is certain to come with the arrival of cold weather, but so far their warning has been unheeded. While they are well stocked with coal none of them claim to have more than a two months' supply and some of them only enough to last one month.

OBJECT TO USE OF SIDEWALKS TO DISPLAY FOODS

Council Considering Action Against Grocers — Two Claims Rejected

Objection to the use of sidewalks by grocers for display of their products was registered by Alderman Fiedler at the regular meeting of the common council Wednesday evening. It was charged that several merchants are violating city ordinances by using more than three feet of the sidewalk and it was suggested that the law be more strictly enforced. It finally was left to the board of health to look into the matter.

Most of the session was spent in "committee of the whole" discussing abolition of the water commission, an account of which will be found elsewhere in this paper. The proposition to extend the water supply intake in the Fox river to a point several hundred feet up river from its present terminus was left on the table.

Claims filed by a Mrs. Homblette and M. Garvey against the city were disallowed. Mrs. Homblette, who had been received in a full M. Garvey was attempting to recover money expended in defense of a lawsuit which grew out of his connection with the city as chief of police.

A permit was granted to use one-third of Appleton-st., just south of College-ave., to store building material while construction work is in progress in the basement of the Combined Locks Paper Co. office. Petitions for extending water mains on Lincoln and Main-sts., were granted but a petition for extension of the Lawrence-st. main was left on the table until next year.

SEARCH OLD TUNNEL FOR BURIED TREASURE

Denver, Colo.—Two Colorado men, William Barker and Charles Lee of Lake City, believe they are on the trail of $35,000,000 in gold and silver bars.

They believe that Treasure Peak, in the San Juan range of the Rockies, is the secret cache of treasure taken by a band of Spaniards and Frenchmen hundreds of years ago. Both men declare they have found the shaft used by this band of Spaniards and Frenchmen.

At the bottom of the shaft, they claim, a stone tablet giving a complete description and diagram of how the treasure could be located, was found. Somewhere in the forgotten tunnels of Treasure Peak is hidden 2,516 large bars of gold and silver according to the stone chart; and Barker and Lee expect to start their treasure hunt in the mountain at once.

Help the Kidneys Fight That Cold

Colds and grip cause thousands of cases of kidney trouble. In any germ disease the system becomes filled with poisons which the kidneys must filter off. All too often this extra burden weakens the kidneys. Then you have constant headache, backache and dizziness; you lack ambition, feel dull, nervous and depressed. Don't ignore these warnings! Help the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Home folks recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor.

I felt tired and languid mornings and had no strength or energy. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them as directed. They relieved me of the kidney annoyances and removed the backaches and pains."

This is ARCOLA Week

My dealers' stores are keeping open evenings so that you and she may see ARCOLA together

YOUR Heating Engineer is keeping open house this week—ARCOLA Week. You and she are invited to go together to see ARCOLA.

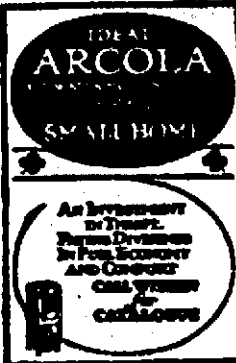

And what does this invitation mean?

It means money in the bank for you. For ARCOLA will reduce your fuel consumption, room for room, an average of one-third as compared with stoves or hot-air furnaces. You can put into the bank one-third of what you have been putting into the fire.

It means a warm-all-over house instead of a house hot in spots and cold everywhere else. It means all the hot water you want for washing and bathing. For ARCOLA, connected with the kitchen tank, heats your water as well as it heats your whole house.

Accept your Heating Engineer's invitation. You will see a heating outfit different from any you have ever known. ARCOLA adds from two to five times its cost to the value of your home—just as IDEAL Boilers and larger AMERICAN Radiator systems add far more than their cost to the value of larger buildings. It burns any kind of fuel and under the expert direction of your Heating Engineer, it can be delivered, set up, and put to work at once.

See ARCOLA Today or Tonight
The red and yellow card at the right is the sign of a Heating or Sanitary Engineer (You used to call him Steamfitter or Plumber) who can show you ARCOLA. Look for it in his window.
It will pay you to consult him twice a year as you do your Doctor or Dentist. To have him examine and report on your heating and plumbing costs little. It may save you a great deal.

ment of so important a phase of the city's business to outsiders. He charged that the commission form of government had established the water commission just before the city commissioners left office because they believed the aldermen were not competent to operate it.

Aldermen Wood and Mayer, however, argued that the only issue in the controversy was efficiency of management and that if the water works department now is efficiently managed that there would be no reason for a change. Alderman Laabs admitted he could not see how aldermanic management would result in greater efficiency or economy but declared he was opposed to the commission because he resented commission rule.

Divide Responsibility
The mayor suggested that responsibility for the waterworks department be passed around among the aldermen and that management of the plant did not present great difficulties because its policies are dictated by the state railroad commission. He gave credit for the present condition of the plant to the employed officers at the plant. August Meyer, former chairman of the commission, declared that the mayor had been opposed to one of the men to whom he gave credit for the plant's efficiency and it was only through the insistence of other members of the commission that that man was retained. Mr. Meyer also declared that part of the expense connected with the operation of the plant had been incurred by the common council when it made purchase directly against the recommendation of the commission.

Operation and management of the plant was described by Oscar F. Weissgerber, city engineer and chairman of the commission. He explained how the present efficiency had been obtained and that it is now returning a profit which will wipe out the deficit that had been incurred in previous years when water rates were too low.

The principal argument against abolishing the commission was the constant change in the personnel of the management if it were placed under control of the aldermen. It was pointed out that six aldermen are elected each year and it was entirely possible that an entirely new water commission would have to be appointed after each election, resulting in decreased efficiency because a new set of men would be required to study the city's water problems.

Mr. Meyer charged that this would make it possible to place the control of the water works department directly in the hands of the mayor who would have power to appoint the water committee. Mr. Plank also said that constant changing of managers of the department would lower its efficiency.

Alderman Lappen ended the discussion by moving to reject the proposed ordinance. The vote was as follows: For rejection of the ordinance—Beske, Meyer, McGowan, Smith, Lappen, Hanson, McCann and Wood; against rejection—Fiedler, Pose, Laabs and Murphy.

Rail Men Glad Stork Put Off His Arrival

Employees of the Chicago and North-western passenger station at Appleton Junction had a few anxious moments in the wee small hours Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Mary Faber, 29, Polish, and her family of seven small children enroute from Mosinee to New York, stepped off the 11 o'clock train Tuesday night into the depot where they had to wait for the 2 o'clock train to continue their journey.

The station employees viewed Mrs. Faber with anxiety, and alarmed lest the stork should make an early visit, they telephoned the police station and asked that a doctor and an ambulance be sent to the junction at once.

When the doctor arrived, he declared his opinion that the family might continue its journey safely as far as Chicago at least and the station employees heaved a deep sigh of relief as the 2 o'clock train vanished into the darkness.

The family is going to New York to join Mr. Faber.

GIRLHOOD DAYS RECALLED BY WISCONSIN WOMAN

After Using Garren's Tonic Mrs. Klar Now Enjoys the Pleasures of Her Youth.

"Give me another bottle of Garren's Tonic," said Mrs. Henry Klar of 304 Eighteenth-st., upon entering the Klef for Drug Co., corner West Water and Wells-st., in Milwaukee the other day.

"My friends hardly know me at first sight since I took this wonderful tonic," she continued. "Everybody says I look like a different woman—I certainly feel like one. Three bottles gave me a wonderful color and my general health has improved a hundred per cent. I feel simply fine."

"For two years my health was dreadfully run down. My appetite left me and the little I ate upset me. I had awful attacks of indigestion and I suffered so with palpitation at times I thought I had heart trouble. Sometimes I would just have to gasp for breath. Many times at night I had to prop myself up on pillows in order to breathe. Often I heard the clock strike every hour of the night—I just couldn't get to sleep. I would get so nervous I would feel like pulling the hair out of my head. Any sudden noise made me jump. I was constipated and had awful pains in my back. I was dreadfully weak and run-down. I tried all kinds of medicines without any benefit, but Garren's Tonic changed things completely around. My strength has been wonderfully increased, I have gained weight and feel just splendidly all the time. I will praise Garren's Tonic as long as I live."

Garren's Tonic is sold in Appleton by the Schlitz Bros. Co., in Kaukauna by E. A. Meyer, in Greenville by H. H. Schulze, in Dale by Abends Pharmacy, in Bear Creek by John W. Statler, in Seymour by S. G. McCord, and by the leading druggists in every city.

REDUCED RATES TOO

The railroads in their official statement say that in 1916, before the Adamson act went into effect and subsequent increases were made, 40 cents of every dollar they received for transportation services went to labor, whereas today the proportion has risen to 60 cents. At the same time they object to lowering rates, arguing that the theory that increased traffic will protect them against losses incident to the reduced rates, is "merely conjectural" and that in the event of adverse results it would be "disastrous not only to the railroads but to the public."

There is one patent flaw in this contention. By their own figures, the railroad net earnings of the country in 1916 were 16.16 per cent. For the year 1914 the net earnings were 4.17 per cent. The increased traffic of the war period therefore showed the earnings of the railroads up an entire two per cent. This is one evidence of the effect of volume on earnings. There are other equally striking illustrations. For the year 1917 the returns were 5.26 per cent, presumably having been affected by the increases in wages and other regulations affecting labor under the Adamson act, which went into operation June 1 of that year. In 1919 the returns had fallen to 2.46 per cent and in 1920 to 0.32 per cent. Nothing could be clearer, we submit, than the effect of volume of traffic upon returns, shown by these figures, for it is evident that the business depression and lack of traffic were chiefly responsible for the low point to which earnings descended last year.

Certainly the railroads cannot maintain an assertion that excessive payrolls are the fundamental or only cause of their financial straits. The railroad business is no different from any other business in its obedience to the economic law that adequate returns may be made on low rates, provided there is sufficient volume. Just now there is not the volume, consequently earnings are down. The twelve per cent cut in wages made by the railway labor board may be justified, but it also follows that a reduction in transportation rates may also be justified by the same processes of reasoning. Even granting that the Adamson law and other acts increased the railroad payroll from $1,468,000,000 to $3,698,000,000 annually, the roads continued, with tariff increases, to make a profit so long as volume held up. When volume went, returns went also.

The railroads are not responsible for the depression. Neither are shippers. The "dull times" hit everybody, and they must hit the railroads too. Because business is at a low ebb is no reason for not reducing freight rates, for everybody agrees that rates are a barrier to resumption of business and that their reduction will help the return to normalcy. Transportation rates must be lowered. They are altogether disproportionate to the value of many commodities hauled. They should be reduced now, as a part of the general plan to liquidate the inflation in transportation all along the line including labor. This action might avert a strike, for there is little doubt the railroad labor board's orders respecting wages ultimately will prevail. This is what the public good of the labor board demands, and its demands should be complied with.

LANDIS HAS NO MONOPOLY ON TEMPERAMENT

In many of the problems which Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis will have to solve, or undertake to solve, as supreme commissioner of baseball, human nature will be a more important issue than the letter or spirit of the law. Problems in which the temperament of players is interspersed will be more satisfactorily adjustable by persuasion than by mandate. The defiance of Judge Landis' order by Babe Ruth apparently is an instance of this kind. Ruth says that he and his colleagues had as much right to play as Sinner of the St. Louis Browns and others, whom the supreme commissioner permitted to take part in exhibition games, or, who, at least, were not forbidden to play. Ruth says, too, that he telephoned to Judge Landis, and the latter twice hung up the receiver.

There are two sides to the question as to whether star players should be allowed to play in post-season exhibition. There is law on each side, as well as the matter of the national game's popularity. The services of a player belong to his team, and he is supposed to take every precaution, between seasons, to keep in perfect trim. On the other hand, he is also at liberty at the close of the season, and may maintain that playing in exhibition games is the best sort of practice. Ruth states that the appearance of well known players in minor-league towns tends to popularize baseball. On the other hand, unless their engagements were subject to approval by their managers, or some authority, questionable practices might arise which would be detrimental to baseball.

THE MINORITY AND THE PEACE TREATY

The Post-Crescent believes the separate treaty with Germany is wholly bad. It believes it constitutes a breach of faith with the nations with which we fought the war. It believes it abandons the high-moral and spiritual aim that induced us to take up arms, and that, as one critic has expressed it, it reduces the war to the status of a damage suit. It believes it is politically and economically defective, but the real point at issue in the making of separate peace is one of national honor. It is certain that if we avail ourselves of the privileges under the Versailles treaty reserved to us by this agreement, we also will be required to shoulder some of the responsibilities, for there can be no benefits without obligations. Time also will show that we could have better served the allies and the cause of peace in Europe, including the fulfillment of reparations duties by Germany, under the general treaty, and time will eventually force us to take the measures that were objected to by the obstructionists. Still, the question of our course is moral, and by moral standards history will judge it.

Senator Hitchcock, minority leader in the senate gave his support to ratification of the separate peace treaty. Inconsistent as his course may appear at first blush, it has much to commend it. Mr. Hitchcock says the administration holds from the American people what it has a right to construe as a mandate to conclude a separate treaty. This may or may not be actually true, but it cannot be disputed that the president and the congress are entitled to view the election as an approval of senatorial hostility to the Versailles treaty as well as an approval of the Knox resolution. This being so, it was not the place of the minority to prevent consummation of the plan which the electorate appeared to have sanctioned. If the people wanted separate peace that was their right and they must abide the consequences. If the party in power merely thinks that is what the people want and is mistaken that is its misfortune.

We had to have peace, and an end to the anomalous relations with Germany which had lasted two years. That at least was certain. Peace is essential to reconstruction, it is essential to political understanding. If it has come in a way that may not in future years reflect credit upon the nation or upon those who brought it about that cannot now be helped. We have to accept the situation as it exists. The separate peace treaty does not prevent American membership in the League of Nations. The way is open to freedom of action in this respect, and that is something to be thankful for. The minority could gain nothing by blocking ratification. It followed the right course by letting the treaty pass.

STONE USED AS BAROMETER

There is in the northern part of Finland a curious stone which serves the people instead of a barometer. This stone, which the Finns call Ilmakivi, turns black or a blackish gray when bad weather is approaching. Fine weather has the effect of turning it almost white. The Finns regard the stone with superstitious reverence, but the scientists say that its changes in color are due to salts contained in its composition.

NEITHER SOLDIER NOR SAILOR

August 15 the title of our confab was "Didn't Raise My Boy," and in it I quoted some remarks from a published address of one Charles E. Barker, H. D. and P. C. D. (which letters I find stand for Doctor of Hygiene and Doctor of Physical Culture) to the effect that the lecturer didn't want his boy taught any sex hygiene by public school instructors. And taking up the cold water sprinkler I ascertained that I want my children taught the truth from kindergarten right up through every grade of public school, for I felt that a teacher who could be trusted to teach my children history, geography and physics should be morally fit to teach them the truth about physiology and hygiene.

Of course, no teacher is competent to instruct children in sex hygiene until he or she has qualified for that special chair by a course of special study. When the average teacher of the three R's or other subjects assumes that he or she is capable of handling sex hygiene instruction as a mere sideline or minor subject, as too many teachers attempt to handle physical training, I am with Dr. Barker all four feet. But the vigorous applause with which the members of the Rotary organization in another city greeted Dr. Barker's fervent declaration that he did not believe in the teaching of sex hygiene to children in the public school under high school age, indicated that his hearers construed his meaning as I did in the talk entitled "Didn't Raise My Boy." They were evidently a bit reactionary in their view of this modern and teaching of sex hygiene to children rather than the customary lies. They very obviously rejoiced to hear a man of Dr. Barker's position utter a knock on the thing and suggest, even if somewhat equivocally, that it is time to start such education after the boy or girl reaches high school age—which is usually six years or more too late.

I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier, but that doesn't signify that I want him to become a sailor. Maybe he ought to enter the marine. Dr. Barker appears to have revised his view somewhat since the address from which I quoted was published. I have received from the Brys' Work Department of the International Association of Rotary clubs a copy of what the secretary calls "Doctor Barker's Revised Address." In this revised address instead of saying "I don't want my child to have his mind instructed on this most important, and if you please, sacred matter, by a stranger who has no affection for him," Dr. Barker steps gracefully back to the right side and sweeps an arm to either side as he declaims:

"But they have got to be taught, and if the fathers and mothers are not going to be big enough and wise enough to stand up and meet this responsibility and give the information and instruction to their children to buttress them against the temptations that are bound to assail them, then we will have to do it in the public schools."

That is better, much better. I regret to note that this revised opinion of Dr. Barker failed to draw the applause which his previous opinion drew.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Mother's View

Dear Dr. Brady:

I enjoy your articles, and especially on subjects dealing with boys.

I read your article of August 15 and thought I should like to tell you that many mothers likewise do not care to have that branch of education established in the public schools.

Several months ago, when you published a list of pamphlets dealing with sex hygiene, some of which were for boys I sent them sorted them over and read some of them to him as occasion arose. We had some serious talks and he said he could tell now what boys to avoid at school.

Many have complimented us on his great respect for his elders. Yet he is a real boy, fond of all boyish sports, a fine swimmer, a Boy Scout.

Some mothers have said to me: "I don't like to spoil my boy's innocence." I advise them to love their boys and let them out but do not let them be spoiled. The Secretary and son, now preaching clean lives, and son came home the other day and said: "Why, mother, he tells us exactly the same things you told me."

I hope you will continue to deal with this subject from time to time, to keep it before parental eyes. Yours for a long life and a happy one.

Sincerely,

(Mrs. C. L. J.)

Answer—It seems evident that you approve the teaching of the subject by the Scoutmaster. My sons, who are in the public school should be especially trained to instruct children concerning the mystery of sex—which by rights should not be kept the mystery it is, in the childish mind. A properly educated teacher of physical training might handle the subject well.

Your motto, never to tell your boy a lie when he seeks information from you, is a fine one. Would that more parents followed it!

Help The Unemployed

By Frederic J. Haskins

Washington, D. C.—You may not be in a position to offer a regular job to anyone, but nevertheless you can do your share toward helping the unemployed.

You can do this by having done now work that must be done sometime. If the front porch or the barn needs a coat of paint, if the furnace needs fixing, if you contemplate building a chicken house or laying a sidewalk, if your premises need cleaning up—have it done now. Even to have your hair cut or your shoes shined when you can well afford it and might otherwise neglect it, is to add something to the sum total of work.

This is the plea of Colonel Arthur Woods of New York, who is Chairman of the Committee on Civic, Community and Emergency Measures of the Unemployment Conference. His job is to find means of placing people in industry while the conference makes a thorough study of the situation, and especially to help in municipal and other community efforts to solve the problem.

His work has just begun. He is getting in touch with the mayor of every city in the United States having a population of 25,000 or more, the summer, as is the case with much street and other municipal work, should be continued as long as the weather permits. The individual should look about for things that need to be done, and have them done now.

The unemployment situation already shows marked signs of improvement, but the fact should not be overlooked that many men are still employed in the harvest field who will soon be out of jobs. The real test of the country's ability to keep its man power employed will come this winter.

The correspondence of Colonel Woods with the various mayors reveals the fact that much might be accomplished if a method could be worked out for shoring men to where the work needed. For example, from towns in the cotton belt comes word that not only is there no unemployment, but more cotton pickers are urgently needed. Grand Rapids, Michigan, needs furniture upholsterers. The list might be lengthened.

This doubtless is one of the national phases of the problem which the conference will deal with in due course. The Woods committee wants it understood that the conference is not there merely to pass the buck to the cities. National measures will be got under way in due course. But it does believe that the solution of the problems undoubtedly begins in the cities. They are the ones who must do the emergency work.

Cities Doing Good Work

The number of cities which are already doing good work is considerable, and will evidently grow. That, in fact, is the striking feature of the situation. The country is carrying the unemployed, its conscience in the matter is wholly unrepentant. There have been many worse spells of unemployment in the history of this country than the present one. The usual attitude toward them in the past has been to ignore them. The theory has been that if you do not talk or write about hard times, they will disappear. Bury your head in the sands of optimism and you are safe. This ostrich-like attitude has suddenly disappeared. The unemployment problem is a leading feature of news and conversation. The awakened city seems suddenly to have awakened to the fact that a man who wants to work and is able to work, but can find no work to do, is a political and economic liability which the country cannot afford. He is proof positive that the social machine does not function well. He is at once the strongest argument of the agitator, and his most receptive auditor.

The Woods committee aims to act as a clearing house for information as to how the unemployment problem may be met by communities. Portland, Oregon, for example, is solving its unemployment problem with great satisfaction. In this as in other cities charity and waste are frowned upon. Portland has one committee of "its objects is to make soup kitchens unnecessary. After all, soup kitchens and bread lines are a confession of failure."

The Portland committee also announces, as one of its purposes, to keep employers from taking advantage of the situation to reduce wages. Portland has one committee to urge the undertaking of as much public work as possible. Another handles the industrial phase of the problem, and urges industry to do as much construction work as possible. It also solicits the householder to provide odd jobs. There is a special director for the employment of women. For the floating population a wood yard has been established which will produce and sell cord wood. A municipal rock pile will be operated for those who refuse to work.

No Unemployment Allowed

So if you don't want to work, don't go to Portland.

Colonel Woods also is advocating in the nation at large the undertaking of as much public work as possible. He does not advocate that either states, cities, industrial concerns or individuals have work done merely for the purpose of affording jobs. That is waste. He advocates that in the case of cities and states, work for which appropriations have already been made should be undertaken at once. Work ordinarily done only in the summer, as is the case with much street and other municipal work, should be continued as long as the weather permits. The individual should look about for things that need to be done, and have them done now.

The unemployment situation already shows marked signs of improvement, but the fact should not be overlooked that many men are still employed in the harvest field who will soon be out of jobs. The real test of the country's ability to keep its man power employed will come this winter.

Q. Is it possible for visitors to Washington to see the White House? S. F. C.

A. During the war and the illness of President Wilson following the White House was not open to any except special guests. With the resumption of the Harding administration the all visitors access to the lower corridors, and to the East Room, while those holding cards issued in the Executive Office, upon presentation of a letter from a Senator or Representative, might see the Red Room, Blue Room, Green Room and State Dining Room. President and Mrs. Harding recently issued an order making it possible for all visitors to see these rooms at certain hours of the day. After a week's trial of this plan they returned to the former method of requiring the presentation of cards.

Q. Has the Labor Board when hearing arguments, shown partially to either the Railroad Companies' representatives or the Unions by allowing one side more time to present its case than the other? J. J. D.

A. The division of time is usually a matter of agreement, but when a limit is fixed by the Board the Board is invariably fair to both sides.

Q. What pseudonym did Washington Irving use? W. G.

A. During the early period of Irving's writing career, he used the pseudonyms Jonathan Oldstyle, Laurence Langstaff, Dietrich Knickerbocker and Geoffrey Crayon.

Q. How did the Passion Play of Oberammergau originate? V. K.

A. The villagers of Oberammergau vowed to present the passion of Christ every ten years, in gratitude for the cessation of the Black Death in 1353.

Q. What is Gloria Swanson's baby's name? J. B.

A. Gloria Swanson Somborn's baby, which is nearly a year old, is Gloria Swanson second.

Q. What is a vinegar room? E. C.

A. A vinegar room is defined as a whip scorpion, especially a large insect species (Thyphonus giganteus) popularly supposed to be very venomous—so called from the odor that it emits when alarmed.

Q. What is the best method for keeping pecans? C. W. D.

A. One of the best methods of keeping pecans is to store them in glass jars. Sooner or later, however all nuts become rancid.

A Resume of American Newspaper Opinion

Abandon The Battleship!

When out of a mass of theory and generalization about reduction of armaments a concrete proposal is made by a man whom the HARTFORD TIMES (Dem.) calls "the father of modern battleship construction," the press of the country agrees that his suggestion is worthy of serious attention. Rear Admiral Bowles, formerly chief constructor of the navy and now head of one of the largest shipyards in the country, has declared in effect that if the world really wants disarmament the method is "easy." His idea is simply to "abandon the battleship," and he adds that "there is no other complete solution." While editors agree that his program is "drastic," it at least has the merit of being a program, and as such it furnishes a basis for discussion.

In all this discussion of arms, the MANCHESTER UNION (Ind. Rep.) remarks, "comparatively little has been said by the men who follow the profession of arms. Statemen and trifling politicians have talked, editors and publicists have been sufficiently vocal, clergyman and professors, women's clubs and undergraduate bodies are on record, but the contributions from soldiers and sailors have been few." And after "this deluge of fanciful ideas promulgated by theoreticians," the UNION finds Admiral Bowles' suggestion "distinctly refreshing," since "it is one of the very few practical suggestions thus far made."

What that suggestion is is quoted thus by the PROVIDENCE TRIBUNE (Ind. Rep.): "Abandon the battleships. Let it be agreed that all battleships, all fighting ships of any type over fifteen thousand tons displacement, and all submarines be scrapped and for the future forbidden." While those are "drastic proposals," the paper comments that "evidently Admiral Bowles believes in doing the job well, if it is to be undertaken at all."

While the first impression is that such a scheme is "radical in the extreme," the HARTFORD TIMES (Dem.) holds that it cannot be "radical" as the utterance of a pacifist. Since Admiral Bowles has probably had "more military training than some of the loudest shouters for a tremendous war organization," a fact "which will make his suggestions command international attention." Where he differs from the militarists, the paper continues, "is that he recognizes oncoming disaster when all guns over six-inch calibre, and all submarines be scrapped and for the future forbidden." Apparently the paper pursues a course of self-destruction to make business good for munitions makers and ship builders.

As the PITTSBURGH LEADER (Prog. Rep.) interprets the Admiral's idea, limitation of armaments is not a "mere problem in the theory of reducing war's equipment," but "a plain case question which any experienced naval officer or statesman can answer." Apparently the answer is that "the way to reduce armaments is to reduce in a practical fashion, and effort along the line that discussion will probably take, limitation of tonnage and replacements." "Will get us nowhere" because of the impossibility of enforcement.

We are "heading rapidly toward a billion-dollar annual naval appropriation," says the BOSTON HERALD (Prog. Rep.), which we would have reached already "if we carried out the ideas of the service." Admiral Bowles' prediction that "the day is not far distant when the maintenance of the navy may easily distance the total expenditure of the whole federal government" before the war appeals to the ROCHESTER TIMES UNION

(Ind.) as one that "ought to make the average American do some soul thinking" because in the present state of our finances "reduction of armaments is no academic problem," rather it is a question of absolute vital importance. Coming as it does from "a great naval authority" the TIMES UNION believes that the Bowles proposal should be given "very serious consideration," since it "is at least, a serious effort to deal with a vitally serious problem."

The PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER (Ind.) admits that the plan "would solve the problem in part," it would end that part of the maddest that runs to bigger ships, bigger guns, thicker armor plate and the hated, dreaded U-boat. But that it would lessen expenditures the LEDGER is not convinced. It says:

"The number of ships might, and of course would be greatly increased. It would lead to further racing within the limits for number, speed, fire control, fire range and for armor protection. Instead of building our giant-battleship we might be building a whole squadron of light cruisers to take its place. Personnel hardly would be decreased."

The LOUISVILLE COURIER JOURNAL (Dem.) also advances the objection that while the plan "could reduce the cost of war," it would not remove the probability of war. It is not "a measure of war prevention, but merely a measure of retrenchment."

If adopted, the MOBILE REGIS TER (Dem.) thinks, the proposal "would rest for its success upon the good faith of the nations subscribing to it," and while "theoretically all the nations are for reduction of armaments and believe it is the necessary step to take," when the matter is looked squarely in the face after the manner of the Bowles program, "the question is sure to come up regarding the enforcement of the agreement and the giving of surety that no nation will build more powerful vessels than another," and, as the paper suggests, it emphasizes "how very difficult is the problem which the Washington conference has before it."

In any event, "Rear Admiral Bowles offers a definite program for that conference to tackle," says the NASHVILLE TENNESSEAN (Ind. Dem.) and while he "will be called upon to defend it" against attacks "by men as expert as himself," yet "when all is said and done the best the expert can get is a draw and public opinion is on the side of the former navy officer."

London's Dress Suit Revival

After a seven-years vacation amid the moth-balls while their owners turned their attention to the problem of winning the war, the dress suits of London are beginning to reappear in such increasing numbers as to cause the LONDON EXPRESS to inquire whether the coming season may not see a complete restoration of the convention of wearing evening dress at theatres and restaurants.

"This is a habit which Londoners have been gradually forsaking since the war," asserts the paper. "A general survey any evening at many leading theatres and restaurants, were in former years it was considered an unbecoming thing to be uncouthly attired, proves that London takes its plays, dinners, and suppers in a careless spirit and wears unorthodox garments of all kinds. Managers of restaurants and theatres are hoping, however, that nothing will hinder the re-establishment of the convention during the coming season. They all agree that it introduces a more festive and stimulating atmosphere to entertainments."

COULD NOT KEEP HOUSE

Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Pitts of Newburgh

Newburgh, N. Y.—"My trouble was a weak back and I could not walk two blocks without being tired out. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in a newspaper and decided to give it a trial. Now I can do my own work and walk with ease. I always keep the Vegetable Compound in my house. It certainly is my best friend and I could not keep house without it. I have recommended it to many and always shall. You may use this letter if you wish."—Mrs. EDWARD PITTS, 2 High St., Newburgh, N. Y.

It has been said that "backache is an invention of the Evil One to try women's souls," but even so, it is more often a symptom of a female trouble which sooner or later declares itself. Day after day it drags a woman down and night after night prevents restful sleep. Such woman should follow Mrs. Pitt's advice and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It contains no narcotic or harmful drugs.

Serving Canned Corn

Most canned vegetables may be eaten from the can, as it were, reheating only being necessary. While this is an easy and quick way to serve them they can form the basis of many delicious made dishes that provide a change and add to the nourishment of the meal.

Canned corn may appear in a great variety of ways.

Creamed Corn
One can corn, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 dessertspoon flour, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Melt butter, stir in flour and when smooth add milk slowly. This will make a very thin sauce. Add corn, season with salt and pepper and sugar and cook, stirring constantly for five minutes. Unless the corn is solid in the can, do not add a whole cup of milk.

Corn Pudding
One can corn, 2 eggs, ½ cup cream, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ beat eggs slightly and add to corn. Add cream, salt, pepper and sugar. Mix well and turn into a well buttered baking dish. Bake twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

Corn Croquettes
One can corn, 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons milk, 1-2 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg.

Dried bread crumbs, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon water.
Put corn into a smooth sauce pan. Add butter and milk and stir in flour, salt, sugar and pepper. Stir to make smooth and add egg slightly beaten. Cook, stirring constantly until thick. Spread on a plate and let cool. Mold in cone shaped croquettes, roll in crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten with water, roll again in crumbs and fry in deep hot fat. Drain on brown paper. These help out a light meat course.

One-half cup corn, ½ cup left-over lima beans, 1 cup canned tomatoes, coarse bread crumbs, butter.
The beans may be dried or canned. Mix corn, beans, and tomatoes. Pour into a buttered baking dish. Cover with coarse bread crumbs, dot with bits of butter and bake until brown on top and thoroughly hot.

Corn Fritters
One can corn, 1 egg, ½ cup milk, ½ cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt.
The amount of flour depends very much on the solidity of the canned corn. Beat egg and add to corn. Add milk and stir in flour mixed and sifted with baking powder and salt. If more flour is necessary increase the baking powder in the proportion of 1 teaspoon baking powder to each half cup of flour. Beat the mixture well for two or three minutes and drop from the spoon onto a well greased griddle or frying pan. Serve hot with maple syrup.

Adventures of the Twins

Olive Roberts Barton

When Wally Woodchuck and his wife arrived at the top of the mountain, which had changed to a brown, rocky mountain, it hadn't rained for days and days, and they hadn't had a drink of water for weeks.

"Hurry, Mrs. Woodchuck," urged Wally. "We're just a few more feet to climb, then we can taste the white frosting that seems to be so thick everywhere, and start back home. One thing sure, Mr. Sprinkle-Blow has kept his promise about the rain. Not a drop since we left."

Wally took a few more steps and reached the white stuff that he thought was frosting and dug his face down deep to take a large bite. Suddenly he gave a whistle of delight. "Oh Jimmy!" he cried, licking his parched lips. "Hurry up, Mrs. Woodchuck. It's snow. I see what Sprinkle-Blow meant when he said it was frosting. What he really meant was frost. Um, yum! It's better than spring water!" and Wally licked up a mouthful. In fact, he and Mrs. Wally ate snow until they thought they would burst.

Sprinkle-Blow on his magic umbrella said to Nancy and Nick in their Green Shoes (they had followed, you know), "Didn't I tell you that Wally would like snow better than icing by the time he got to it?"

But what was that Mrs. Wally was saying? It was something about being ahead of time, and that she and her husband had better crawl under the snow for six months and go to sleep. "No," said Sprinkle-Blow, appearing beside them. "Go home and spend the rest of the summer in peace. Wally, do you want more dry weather for your return trip?"

"No," answered Wally. "Will you please open your barrel marked 'Regular Pourdowns.' I didn't know what I was saying before."

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So
Naturally Nobody
Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musky mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wreth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular, because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wreth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

ACT NOW TO KEEP ROADS SNOW-FREE

Madison—The maintenance division of the Wisconsin highway commission is sending out notices urging that local communities that are interested in keeping certain highways free from snow and open for traffic during the coming winter shall petition the county board for the same in order that the county board can provide the necessary funds and the necessary equipment to do the work required. If this matter is not called to the attention of the county boards during their annual county board meetings in November, 1921, says the commission, petitions requesting the highway commission to force the counties to keep certain roads open do not give the county a fair show to begin such work at a time when the best results can be obtained. Neither does it permit the county to make the necessary appropriations or provide the necessary equipment. The commission, therefore, suggests that any community that is interested should by all means place the matter before the county board at its annual meeting.

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. FEWER FOREIGN BORN RESIDENTS THAN DECADE AGO

Census Shows Little Illiteracy in State—School Attendance Good

Outagamie county's percentage of foreign born white population has declined about 4 per cent in ten years, according to 1920 census figures just issued by the bureau at Washington. This decline follows that of most other counties in the state, and keeps Outagamie about on a level with other counties.

Illiteracy is almost unknown here, and holds a very low percentage in other Wisconsin cities. The percentage in the larger Badger cities is: Green Bay, 2.4; Kenosha, 4.5; La Crosse, 1.7; Madison, 2.6; Milwaukee, 3.0; Oshkosh, 1.9; Racine, 2.4; Sheboygan, 2.4; Superior, 2.2 per cent. This is intended to mean all who are unable to write in English or any other language.

In 1920 12 1/2 per cent of the Outagamie co. population was foreign born as compared to 16.9 in 1910; the census shows Outagamie dropped from 16.2 to 11.6. Winnebago from 21.2 to 16.3; Sheboygan from 23.3 to 19.2 and Calumet co. from 14.2 to 9.6 per cent. Wisconsin's total domestic born population, native white, is 81.9 per cent; foreign born, 17.5 per cent. The foreign-born whites dropped from 512,589 in 1910 to 460,128 in 1920; the native born increased from 1,807,986 to 2,156,810.

Slightly more than two-fifths or 40.3 per cent of the white people in the state are native Americans born of native parents. There are 5,201 Negroes; 9,611 Indians and 251 Chinese. More illiteracy exists in cities than in rural districts. The percentages are 2.6 for the cities and 2.3 for the farming communities. Wisconsin has a total of 50,397 who are unable to write.

Census figures also show that there are 373,122 children 7 to 13 years of age in Wisconsin, of which 94.5 per cent were reported as attending school. In 1910 this percentage was 93.7 per cent, thus indicating an improvement in school attendance. The percentage of children in school is larger in the cities than in the rural districts.

SEEK SPECIMENS FOR COLLEGE LABORATORY

Lawrence college is making its annual search for crawfish, lizards and clams for laboratory work, but it is doubtful if it will get its usual supply this year because of low water and the depletion made by purple gnats. These birds were on constant watch for crawfish in the river bed from daylight until dark all summer and as soon as one showed itself it was instantly devoured. The river bed below the middle dam has been exposed the greater part of the summer, which made it possible for the birds to make a clean sweep and since their departure for the south very few crawfish have been seen. Lizards and clams have also disappeared from that part of the river, where last spring they were numerous.

NEW CHAIRMAN OF RED CROSS

Washington.—John Barton Payne, new chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross, is a south-easterner of the old school, and a lawyer and diplomat.

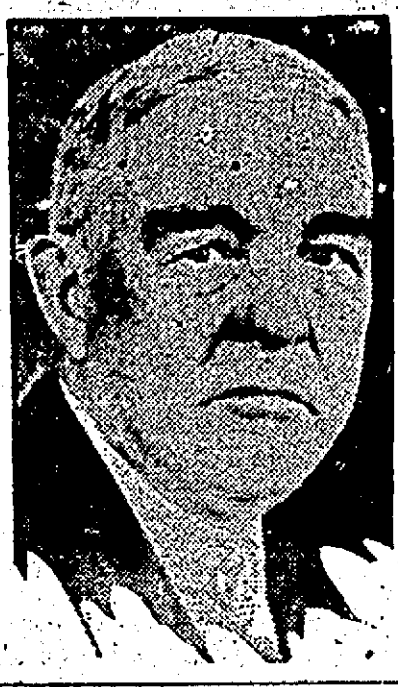

He was born in Pruntytown, Fauquier county, Virginia, and got his education in that neck of the woods. A graduate of law school, he was admitted to the bar in 1876. His home state and West Virginia held him for five years. Then, after serving a term on the circuit court bench and a term as mayor of Kirkwood, W. Va., he moved to Chicago.

Payne served as judge of the superior court of Cook county, Illinois, and joined the Chicago law firm of Winston, Payne, Strawn & Strawn.

From 1917, when Payne was named general counsel of the U. S. Shipping Board, he has had much to do with government work.

The Shipping Board job led to his appointment as general counsel of the Railroad Administration. Following this he swung back to the Shipping Board, as chairman, when Edward N. Hurley resigned.

During the war Payne helped organize the machinery for taking the first army draft.

Payne's last position with the government was as secretary of the interior in the Wilson administration.

AUTO THIEF ON TRIAL IN GREEN BAY COURT

Carl Moes, 29, Oconto, and formerly of Green Bay, is on trial in Green Bay municipal court for the alleged theft of an automobile which he had in his possession when arrested by Green Bay authorities last summer. This is the closing chapter in a series of auto thefts for which his cousin, Edward Moes, was sentenced to Green Bay reformatory. The latter was involved in taking two automobiles from Waverly beach last summer, and which were recovered by the police at the time the men were arrested.

INCREASING SALE OF TREASURY CERTIFICATES

Sales of treasury securities at Appleton postoffice are increasing several hundred dollars monthly. During September $1,454 worth of stamps and certificates were sold compared to an average of 400 worth in preceding months.

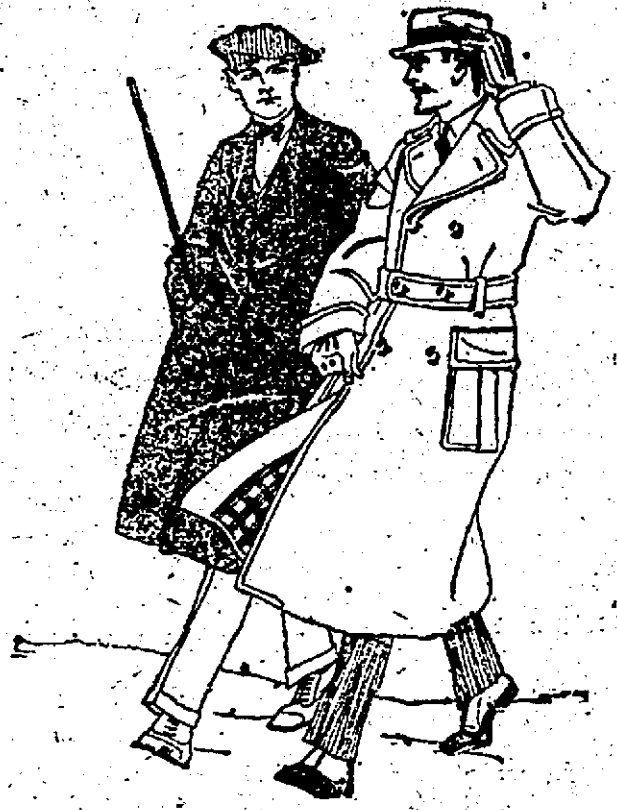

Thus far in October, sales of these securities have continued to increase and it is expected that the total this month will equal or exceed that of September. The increase in sales is attributed to the realization of the public that these securities are a safe investment. Because they do not fluctuate in value, pay 4 per cent compounded interest and are redeemable on short notice, they are becoming more popular with Appleton people.

Holes in Pacific-st., just east of Meade-st., caused by the rain, settled the dirt in recent excavations made by the Appleton Water department, broke a spring on the automobile of August Thier, of 630 Second-ave., when he drove into them Tuesday night, according to his report to the police.

Plan Would Make County-Wisconsin Garden Spot

Outagamie co. may become the garden spot of Wisconsin if a plan to be inaugurated by Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank next spring holds any appeal to the farmers in general. He plans to work with six owners of farm homes in various parts of the county to beautify the surroundings with shrubbery, vines and floral beds.

Just as pavements in the city have been extended to all parts of the county by means of the system of concrete highways, it is believed that other city features will be carried into the rural districts. One of these is the beautifying of lawns, which is being done extensively in Appleton.

Homes in the country can be made as pleasant and artistic in their surroundings as in the city, Mr. Nyhus believes. Country homes usually represent a large investment, and out of a sense of pride, it is thought that farmers will take to the beautifying idea once they see its possibilities.

Automobiles have knit the city and country so closely that rural beauty means more now than it ever did, with so many machines passing the average farmhouse daily. Homes that appear plain and unattractive can be given a new charm by appropriate arrangement of green and colored growth. The younger families on the farms seem especially pleased with the idea of improving their homes.

NO RABBIT HUNTING UNTIL NEXT WEEK

New Law Prohibits Digging for Skunks This Year—5 Rabbits Daily is Limit opens. County Clerk Herman J. Kamps announced Thursday that the open season for rabbits does not begin until Oct. 25, ten days later than usual.

The use of traps, snares, ferrets, rats, weasels and guinea pigs is prohibited. The bag limit for rabbits or squirrel is five a day.

The rules prohibit carrying a gun or rifle in any vehicle unless unloaded or knocked down or unloaded and enclosed in a case, or to have any loaded firearms in possession in a territory where there is an open season for deer during the period five days before the opening of the season.

The "popular" pastime of "digging" out skunks also must go by the board this year. A slight change in the law makes it illegal to dig out the animals this year. This is the way the law reads:

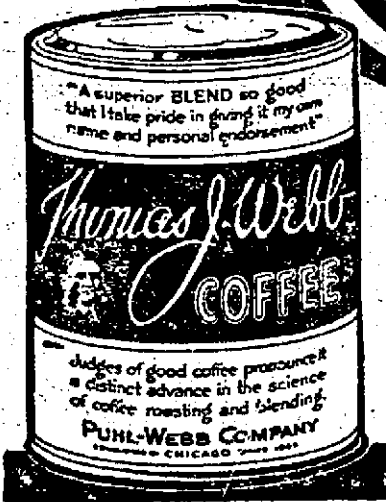

29.24 Fur Bearing animals; Methods of Taking. (1) No person shall hunt any mink, or muskrat with the aid of any spear, gun, or dog, disturb or molest a raccoon or skunk den or tree for the purpose of capturing the raccoons, or skunks, or any muskrat house, beaver house or beaver dam; or set any trap or traps at any time within five hundred feet of any beaver house or beaver dam (except under license issued under section 29.59 (5).

RURAL SCHOOLS CLOSE DURING CONVENTION

Because a number of rural teachers will attend the meeting of the North-eastern Wisconsin Teachers' Association at Green Bay Friday and Saturday, some of the rural schools in Outagamie co. will be closed Friday.

Teachers have received announcements of the meeting from the county superintendent's office and school boards are expected to permit every teacher to attend the meeting if she so desires. Teachers will be paid for the day just as though they had taught if they present certificates of attendance at the meeting to the school boards.

CONSUMPTION OF WATER WAS HEAVY

Approximately 50,000,000 gallons of water were consumed by the people of Appleton during the 30 days in September, according to the report filed with the water commission by A. J. Hall, superintendent of the filtration plant.

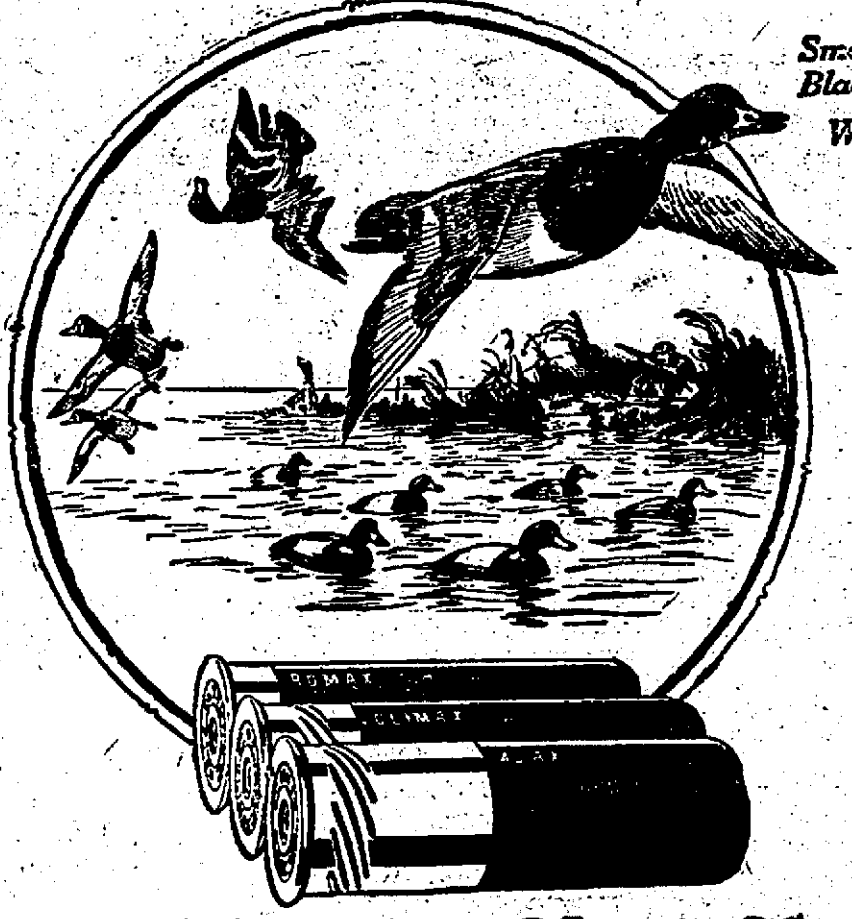

This water, although it contained 8,446 bacteria to the cubic centimeter when it entered the plant, was delivered to the city in a perfect state for consumption. Daily tests showed that there was a bacterial removal efficiency of 99.9 per cent for the 41,800,000 gallons treated and sent through the mains. The remaining part of the 47,730,000 gallons pumped by the machines was used for washing the filtration vats.

Salaries and other accounts amounting to $4,626.93 for September were allowed by the commission at its meeting.

MILWAUKEE BREWERS PLAY HERE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

LEAGUE TEAM IS TO WIND UP YEAR WITH GAME HERE

Schultz to Pitch for Brandts—Expect Gearin to Hurl for Brewers

As Sarah Bernhardt, the Brandts are postponing their farewell appearance as long as possible. It was announced last week that the game with Oshkosh would wind up the season but today comes the announcement that next Sunday's game will be the close.

And it will be a fitting close for the season for the Milwaukee Brewers, on a barnstorming trip, will give battle to the locals. The Brewers haven't lost a game on their trip, defeating even an aggregation of major league players at Racine a few days ago. The Milwaukee team will be here Sunday morning and the game is to start at 2:30.

Owner August Brandt has announced that a straight admission price of 35 cents will be charged, including war tax and a grandstand seat. It is believed that this price arrangement will insure a record breaking crowd, considering the class of the attraction. The Brewers, who are coming here on a basis of percentage of receipts, had insisted on an admission fee of 75 cents plus 50 cents for grandstand.

Hank Schultz, the spitball hurler, will work on the hill for the locals, with Shott on the receiving end. It is probable that Ted and Martin Lamers will be included in the lineup. No word has been received from Milwaukee as to who will pitch for the Brewers but it is believed that Nemo Gearin will draw the assignment. Gearin has been pitching good ball of late, and the Brewers are anxious to count the Brandts among their post-season victims.

Sport Views And News

Art Schinner, sport scribe on a Milwaukee paper, has been named a member of the Wisconsin Boxing commissioner succeeding Walter Liginger, who retires after five years of services. The retiring commissioner leaves with honors. It was Liginger, who put the ring game in the Badger on the high plane that it now is. His rulings have been patterned by fight commissions throughout the country. Schinner has got a pair of shoes to fill but with a good break in luck he will get away with the job.

Buck Weaver has filed suit for $20,000 against the Chicago American league ball club. Weaver, who was a member of the white washed Black Sox seeks to collect this amount, which he claims is salary due him. Weaver asserts that President Charles Comiskey dropped him off the club roster without cause and that his acquittal in the baseball scandal trial clears him of any guilt, on the charge of throwing games. This lawsuit will be watched with great interest by fans throughout the country.

Jack Dempsey is in bad again. This time the husband of a stage star has brought suit for a $100,000 claiming the heavyweight champion alienated his wife's affections. As usual, the conqueror of Carpenter denies it all, claiming it is a put up job to pull down some coin. Court actions are beginning to get Dempsey's goat who says that a champion's life is just one civil suit after another with a few fights thrown in.

The two Milks, O'Dowd and Gibbons sure are having an awful time trying to stage their proposed boxing contest. Arrested once in Wichita, Kan., they moved over into Oklahoma and billed their battle for Tulsa. Things looked all right until Gov. Roberts stepped in and ordered a halt on the fistie conflict. The promoters are losing a pile of jack on the affair due to the numerous postponements.

TWO FORMER STARS HELP YOST DRILL HIS SQUAD

Ann Arbor, Mich. — Two of the Michigan stars of the old days, Joe Maddock and "Fling" Cole were here helping Coach Yost get his football eleven into condition to meet Ohio State on Saturday.

Usher, fullback and Banks, quarterback, will be out of Saturday's game because of injuries.

STAGG CONFIDENT AS MAROONS LEAVE FOR EAST

Chicago—Chicago has as good a football team as Princeton, and if our men play the game as they know it, they will win. Coach Alonzo Stagg declared Wednesday on the eve of the departure of the Maroon eleven for the east.

The Maroon squad was in good condition and keyed up to a fighting spirit by Stagg.

GREEN BAY PACKERS AFTER FRANK WESTON

Green Bay—Frank "Red" Weston, one of the greatest ends ever turned out at Wisconsin and captain of the Badger eleven in 1920, may be seen in a Packers uniform. Negotiations with the crack gridder have progressed satisfactorily and it is likely that he will make his first appearance here Sunday in the game against the Minneapolis Marines.

BELOIT IN GOOD SHAPE FOR GAME HERE SATURDAY

State Line School Finishes Bruising Carleton Game in Good Style

Beloit finished the game with Carleton without sending any more men to the hospital and it will come to Appleton with all its regulars in shape for a stiff fight. That information was obtained from Beloit on Thursday.

Coach Mills was quite well satisfied with the way his team showed up against Carleton despite the 42 to 0 defeat. Carleton used three full teams against the State liners and wore them down. Beloit held the big Gopher team even in the first quarter but was swamped in the second and third.

Much is made of the playing of Halfback Addie who ran around the Gopher team for several good gains. McCulliffe, quarterback, also showed up very well in the Carleton game. Reports from the south indicate that that pair will bear watching next Saturday. Radebaugh, Halfback, was on the bench because of injuries but will start Saturday.

Lawrence coaches have a pretty good line on Beloit plays and are drilling their men in defensive measures this week. It will be the first time that Lawrence will open up its plays. Last Saturday McChesney preferred to lose to revealing his trick formations for the benefit of scouts who might be on hand. It is certain, however, that the Blue and White will not reveal anything more than is required to win the game.

Students are showing more interest in the team now than at anytime this season. The defeat last Saturday has stirred them up to a fighting pitch which is being communicated to the team. Beloit will know it has been in a battle when Lawrence gets through with it.

HINDU WRESTLER INVADERS AMERICA

Wichita, Kas.—The age-old fear of the wrestling world that the championship of the world will pass from the race and repose permanently with the Hindu in southern Asia has been brought up again.

The bringer up of the fear is Jatin Charnu Goho Gohar, the gigantic Indian who has just shown wrestling fans and Ed (Strangler) Lewis a thing or two in their match here.

When the huge Hindu, who says he has come to this country in the interests of his own land and his education and has taken up wrestling as a side issue, clapped a terrific hold upon Lewis, the champion, and twisted his shoulders to the mat in less than an hour's wrestling, several things thereupon happened:

Gohar incidentally placed himself in the ranks of the topnotchers and made himself a man to be feared by the best grapplers in the world. He showed himself to be a man of terrible strength, extreme caution, wily generalship and skillful science.

"That 'Hindu menace' should have entered the American wrestling circles—which is to say the world's wrestling circles—at the very start of the 1921-22 season is indicative of a new factor in wrestling in the next year or two.

HOREMANS WINS EASILY OVER YAMADA, JAP STAR

Five All-Americans On Staleys

"CHICK" HARLEY
ALL-AMERICAN HALF BACK
FOR THREE YEARS—NOW WITH DECATUR PROS.

FIVE ALL-AMERICAN PLAYERS ARE WITH THE DECATUR GRIDDERS.

Starting out with five All-American stars, Coach George Halas, former Illinois all-round athlete and Great Lakes star of service days, landed two of the most sought for college grid-ders in the country in the persons of "Chick" Harley and Pete Stichcomb, All-American men from Ohio State, the former being selected for the mythical eleven for three years.

Harley and Stichcomb are playing in the backfield for the Staleys and with Dutch Sternaman, former Illinois hero and Kenneth Huffine, the old Purdue lettering man at full, form a great offensive.

Ralph Scott of Wisconsin, selected by Walter Camp for his 1920 All-American, is playing the same old tackle position as he did at the Badger school and Hugh Blacklock, who played a great game with the Michigan Aggies in the period when that school was a factor in western football is on the other side.

In the line they have four of their old vets. Halas and Guy Chamberlain, the old Nebraska ends, who will be remembered as part of the Halligan, Chamberlain and Butlerford trio at the Cornhusker school, when Jimmie Stichom, now coaching at Indiana, was turning out Missouri Valley title winners.

Tarzan Taylor, who helped Ohio State win the Big Ten honors in 1920, will be at the guard post and Trafton, formerly of Notre Dame, will block out the center. Half a dozen other grid stars of universities and colleges all over the country make up the reserve list.

The Staleys are conducted along the same lines as a university eleven, holding their daily drills and in many instances having both morning and afternoon sessions before a big game.

During the 1920 campaign the Staleys lost one game out of 13, and that to a team they afterwards defeated more decisively.

PACKERS MEET REAL FOE NEXT SUNDAY

Minneapolis Marines Sure to Give Green Bay Stars a Regular Fight

The Green Bay Packers will play their first game in the Professional league Sunday afternoon at Hagedorn stadium when they tackle the Minneapolis Marines, champions of the Northwest for the last six years.

This contest is the turning point to the Packers' gridiron career. For four years the Green Bay team has been close on the heels of the "big fellows" but they never before succeeded in booking a game. The Marines are rated as one of the best ten professional football eleven in the country.

Stars in Lineup

Their lineup includes some of the greatest pigskin chasers in pro-football circles. The Marines' line will tip the beam at 200 pounds. Gus Kramer, Washington State guard in 1920, is the "anchor." He tips the beam at 220 pounds. Left Tackle Palmer, the lightest man on the scrimmage front weighs 130.

The Marines will travel from Minneapolis in a special car.

ORGANIZED BALL BACKING LANDIS AGAINST SLUGGER

Yankee Owners Are Looking for Man to Take Ruth's Place in Outfield

By United Press Leased Wire.
New York—Babe's in the sticks, the Mountain is about to come to judgment and they just can't put baseball to bed for the winter until ten million baseball fans throughout the country find out what's going to happen.

And may be old. Father Knickerbocker isn't waiting that before taking look these days. The possibility of the bustling Bam being barred for a season or so has all New York sitting up and taking post season notice.

Babe Ruth and his support continue to appear each matinee, playing to capacity audiences on a small time circuit, with the Bam on first base or trotting about the bases after lifting one over the fence. The pitchers who have been batted for a homer by Babe Ruth will be able to head a sizable convention this winter.

Judge Konesaw Mountain Landis is holding up his ace for a couple of rounds, giving Ruth every chance to get out from under before the judicial sock sends him to the bench for a year as far as major league ball is concerned.

And the Yankee colonels, Ruppert and Huston, are backing Landis. The Bam may be their million dollar drawing card, what with his home run record and so on, but the owners of the New York Americans are playing the game.

The Yankees are looking for an outfielder to take Ruth's place next season. That's how far the thing has gone. Harry Hooper of the White Sox is mentioned as a likely successor to the Bambino, in case he of the homers gets suspended. Miller Huggins is known to be combing the batting and fielding averages in search of garden material.

If the axe falls, and the Babe gets his, baseball writers and fans will be back of Landis almost to a man. The view here is that the whole affair need never have come to a head. If Ruth hadn't acted like a great big kid and gone off to play toy baseball in a great huff, just to show Landis he wasn't afraid to.

George Hill is between two fires. He doesn't know whether he wants to remain in Appleton and take advantage of the interest in wrestling which he helped build up or go to Canada and open up new fields under the wing of a millionaire promoter, Alex Morehouse, a Canadian promoter on a large scale, has been bidding for Hill's services and he offers sounds like a letter from Tom Fishburn. Hill, however, is not sure whether he should accept or give Appleton another trial.

In the meantime he is working hard for his match with Kara Osman here Oct. 26. He already is in fair condition and expects to be in tiptop shape by Wednesday night. Hill put on considerable weight during the summer and it is doubtful if he ever will be reduced to his weight level of 1920. He expects to go on the mat weighing about 202 pounds and declares he will be as fast at that weight as he was last year.

BLOOMER-KOEPKE SUIT SENT BACK FOR NEW TRIAL

Supreme Court of State Upholds Judge Spencer's Decision in Case

Wisconsin supreme court on Tuesday affirmed the decision of Judge A. M. Spencer in the case of William Bloomer against Ben C. Koepke. The supreme court's ruling will bring the case back to the higher branch of municipal court here for another trial.

This is the seventeenth case in which an appeal was taken from Judge Spencer's court and in only one of these did the higher court reverse the decision made by Judge Spencer. Bloomer started suit against Koepke early in the spring to collect about $3,500 which he claimed was due him as wages for serving as superintendent on a road construction job in 1920 for Mr. Koepke, president of the Appleton Construction company. The defendant claims that he owes the plaintiff a little in excess of $1,000.

The case was brought up for trial in municipal court here about five months ago before Judge Spencer and went to the jury on a special verdict. Upon return of the verdict, Attorney Claude G. Cannon, acting for the defendant, asked for a new trial and this was granted by Judge A. M. Spencer. An appeal was then taken to the state supreme court.

The supreme court's decision in affirming the decision of Judge Spencer brings the case back to its status at the time of the appeal. Attorney Cannon said Wednesday, and will mean that it will have to be retried in municipal court here.

GREENVILLE REPORTS BIG YIELD OF BEETS

With the sugar beet harvest nearly over, farmers in the town of Greenville declared the yield this year is as good as the average yield of other years in spite of the exceptionally dry growing season.

George Tennie places the yield of his crop at 15 tons to the acre and other farmers report harvests of 12 tons to the acre. They ascribe satisfactory production to intensive cultivation during the dry weather and to adequate rains which came early enough in August to refresh the plants and hasten their growth.

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ISELF

A few drops of "Outgrow" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night. "Outgrow" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Autumnal Beauty
How beautiful these woods of autumn are: This soft-leaved golden carpet stretches far And crimson draperies hangeth everywhere Virginia creepers climbed The sun to share.

But now their green is changed To velvet red. King Frost the reaper Soon their leaves shall shed. No more their garb shall clothe The naked tree To brave the winter— Stormy though it be.

A sprig of golden rod Or aster gay Still cheers the weary traveler. On his way. 'Tis the last bloom of nature Ere the snow Comes down to cover Sleeping things below.

The brook still babble softly On its way Save where the fallen leaves Have hushed its lay. And here and there where still The waters run, The speckled trout reflects the Autumn sun.

...And This Is Autumn...

Farewell Oh Golden Autumn Thou must go— But look, behold the north And flying snow!

A Raglar Affair
Dorothy Henning celebrated her tenth birthday yesterday by inviting fifteen of her little friends to help eat her birthday cake. They arrived at 77 Sheboygan-st. at about 4 o'clock. Much fun and excitement prevailed when the guests entered a contest to see who could pin the tail on the cat. Dorothy Eberhart and Buddy Downs came closest and were given prizes. Then everybody pitched quilts for a time. Ruth Jane Wallich and William Nuss won the prizes at this game. After this sport was over the Victrola was started and everyone danced. The hostess danced a number of solo interpretive numbers. But the best part was to sit down to the table which held many goodies on it. Each guest was allowed to blow out one. The table was decorated with Halloween favors and place cards. Various Halloween decorations were used all over the house. Mrs. W. C. Henning and daughter Geraldine, assisted the hostess in serving her guests—Fond du Lac Daily Commonwealth.

The veil of secrecy thrown around the field will probably stay for the rest of the season. The Badgers will have their final home practice on Thursday and will leave Thursday night for Urbana.

Illinois plays adopted by the All-Americans have been used against the first eleven throughout the week. While the fast shifts puzzled the squad the first of the week, the defense is now strengthened and the team appears to be in excellent shape for their second conference game, the right guard, and the shifting of Braun from guard to tackle. The forward wall is giving Coach Richards less concern and the entire team is being perfected in style of play and teamwork. Close to 500 Badger rooters will ride the blind baggage, auto trucks, and the red plush seats to see the Illinois game on Saturday.

VOICE OF PEOPLE SPEAKS FOR OPEN PARLEY SESSIONS

Pacific Question Could in Wisdom be Settled at Disarmament Conference

By Col Edward M. House (Copyright by Public Ledger). Philadelphia. — When President Harding, in response to public opinion first indicated his intention of calling a conference at Washington it was thought its activities would be confined to the limitation of the naval armaments of Great Britain, Japan and the United States.

But the thought has grown apace and his stirred beyond all expectation the latest desires of people in every land that it should have a wider range, so as to include many, if not all, of the problems vexing a troubled world. The impulse of the movement seems to have astonished official Washington and made it fearful that disappointment would result.

Just how far President Harding can meet expectations remains to be seen. This country took upon itself the responsibility of declining to join its allies in signing the Versailles treaty. It went even further in declining to join the other nations in an association, whose purpose was to limit armaments, keep the peace and to do other useful things requiring international cooperation. It is, therefore, clearly up to us to try to do through the Washington conference what we have failed to try to do through other channels which have been open to us.

Save in Taxes
Nevertheless, there is no slackening in the determination of our people to do away with war, and the cause of war, where possible. The burden of taxation is pressing heavily upon them, and they at last have awakened to the knowledge that war means something more than the loss of life and the destruction of property. It means incessant toil and hardships for generations afterward. The taxes imposed for past wars are grievous enough, but they can not be avoided. The taxes proposed for greater armaments in preparation for further wars can, to a large degree, be avoided, and it is this about which they now are concerned.

There can be no doubt of President Harding's high purpose or that he has the good will of the country back of him. He would be well advised, however, to hearken to the insistent demand which is being made in this country for publicity. One sometimes hears that this demand is merely the voice of the press to obtain news while it is fresh and full of interest, but that is not true. It is the voice of a people who feel a distrust in the old ways of diplomacy and who wish information concerning those things vital to their welfare. It is a demand, to know the essential facts so that judgments may be formed and the action of those taking part in the conference may be assessed properly. There is no suspicion on the part of our people that the motives are unworthy or that we want something of advantage which we should not properly have, therefore it would be well for those who are to represent us to keep the faith which is held in them and not allow rumor and suspicion to destroy it.

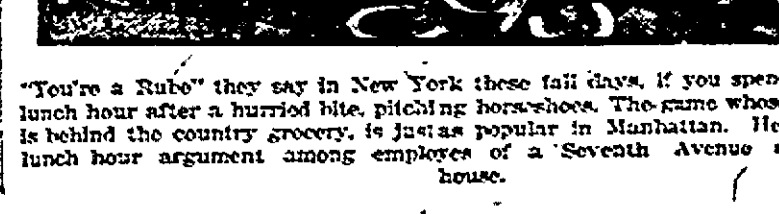

Won't Be Misunderstood
This can be done only by keeping in the open and having the press tell day-by-day what is proposed and the reasons given for or against each proposal. Open sessions may in some instances prove embarrassing, but because of that the greater good should not be sacrificed. The American people are generous and open-minded, and no one acting for them need fear that honest motives will be misunderstood. It is in this way, and in this way alone, that the conference can meet public expectations.

Some things coming before the conference worthy though they may be, will be impossible of accomplishment, and there will be other things proposed which will merit but scant consideration. If the entire picture is shown it may offer disappointments, but there will be sufficient understanding not to cause disapproval.

While nothing further than a reduction of naval armaments may be accomplished, yet there is no reason why the conference should confine itself to this. In order to obtain an agreement between Great Britain, Japan and the United States upon the question of the size of their respective fleets it will be necessary to come to terms regarding policies relating to the Pacific, and this in itself will be an achievement of much value. It would mean peace in the near future for half the world and it would accelerate the movement toward maintaining peace in the other half. Again a great opportunity is before us. Let us hope we may meet it worthily.

"RUBE" GAME POPULAR

"You're a Rube" they say in New York these fall days, if you spend your lunch hour after a hurried bite, picking horseshoes. The game whose home is behind the country grocery, is just as popular in Manhattan. Here's a lunch hour argument among employees of a Seventh Avenue storage house.

PRINCE'S JOURNEY WILL OPEN NEW ERA

Japanese Expect Much to Result from Visit of Crown Prince to Europe

Tokyo—With the return from Europe of the Crown Prince, Japan expects to enter upon a new era. The trip abroad, the first of its kind undertaken by a member of a dynasty more than two thousand years old, is looked upon as a momentous event. The press is calling it as important as was the opening of Japan to foreign intercourse more than fifty years ago, and it expects as great results.

The Crown Prince, the people feel, has brought home a vast store of knowledge from the countries which he has visited. The Japanese hope that from now on the Imperial throne will be brought closer to them.

The most conspicuous change so far is the permission that photographs may be taken of the Crown Prince even when he is afoot. In the past he could be snapped only when he was in a carriage.

The people must take the initiative themselves; they must break down the wall with which the reactionaries wish to separate the people from the throne. The reactionaries are led by old Prince Yamagata, and they are still powerful. They represent largely the military class, and for this reason the present system of a sovereign, aloof from the people, to whom they may appeal directly and secretly, is almost essential to their continuance in power.

Until now the Japanese people have regarded their rulers almost entirely in the light of divinities. They are not spoken of by name, but always by their honorific titles. Now, however, a human element has entered into the relation between the people and the Crown Prince. Besides being looked upon as a divine ruler, he is tremendously popular as a person.

THE PHOTOGRAPHER KNEW THIS CURVE

1,500 MEMBERS AND $10,000 IS CAMPAIGN GOAL

who attended the meeting were confident that with concentrated effort they could reach both goals. Last year when the Appleton Woman's club set out for its $10,000, the members had nothing concrete on which to place their appeal for money. This year the great activities of the club, its influence in making Appleton a better city, its efforts to provide wholesome helpful recreation and exercise for the young girls in the city and its numerous other favorable accomplishments point to the great place it has made for itself in the community and in the state since the news of its accomplishments have been carried to every city in the state by delegates to the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs convention.

Miss Genevieve Carroll, chairman of the membership committee and Mrs. S. C. Shannon have charge of the appointment of the ward chairmen, the appointments to be made on Thursday and Friday. Mrs. W. F. Winsey and Mrs. A. H. Wickert sort the record cards according to wards on Thursday afternoon so that they would be ready for distribution by the ward chairmen to their workers at once. The recreation department members will be solicited by a committee of the younger girls.

Ward chairmen and their committees will meet Saturday afternoon in the Appleton Woman's clubroom for a short preliminary meeting at which time the plan of campaign will be presented. It is the plan of the committee in charge to train the women who are out-soliciting so that they may give all necessary information concerning the club, its five departments and its many minor clubs.

The drive will be put underway on Wednesday evening, Oct. 26 when all the workers will meet at the Woman's clubroom for supper after which instructions will be given out. Mrs. D. P. Steinberg, and the Misses Marie Ziegenhagen and Constance Johnson were appointed as the supper committee which will have charge of the supper on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening. They will be served before the rally meetings in the clubroom. With more than 100 workers on the drive, the clubroom will be crowded to capacity but the members felt that the supper were necessary and could be handled more expeditiously at the clubroom than at any other place. The clubroom will be made the center of the campaign activities.

Big stocks of steel ingots are on hand at the mills, hence ingot output is behind output of finished products. September ingot production was only 20 per cent of capacity. That's at a rate of 15,534,000 tons a year, which compares with 20,250,120 tons produced in 1912 and 42,519,200 tons in 1917, the banner year.

Average production in the steel industry now is 40 per cent of capacity. Prices average a third higher than in 1913.

Demonstrations by communists Wednesday, in which more than 200 persons created a disturbance in front of the embassy until they were dispersed by the police and fear of a possible bomb outrage similar to that at Paris against Ambassador Herriek led to extraordinary precautions being taken.

London—No necessity for "extra precautions" at the American embassy here was seen by United States officials Thursday.

Although threatening letters relating to the communists sentenced at Dedham, Mass., U. S. A. have been received here it was believed anti-American demonstrations would be confined to the continent.

WICKEDEST BUFFALO PAYS DEATH PENALTY

Cheyenne Wyo.,—Geronimo the wickedest old buffalo bull that ever lowered his shaggy head, is dead. Geronimo was owned by Charles Irwin, of the Y-6 ranch.

But Geronimo's meanness increased with age. Wire fences meant nothing to him, and the buffalo became a common sight on many ranches. Naturally ranchmen cursed Geronimo's existence as their cattle escaped through the gaps in the fences. Reports of badly gored cattle came to Irwin, and one morning a particularly fine bull was found disemboweled. A few hours later, Geronimo appeared at his wallow, his head matted with blood.

And so, on circumstantial evidence, the big buffalo was executed by Irwin. His head, with its wickedly gleaming eyes hanging on the wall of the living room of the Y-6 ranch house. His hide makes a beautiful rug.

"And his spirit," reads the signboard above his grave, erected by cowboy's the phantom herds of Paradise, "where Geronimo, the bison incarnation of the devil himself, has ceased his roaming and fence-walking and treacherous charges, to find happiness in the so-

Agent Bert Herzog had negotiated for the purchase of a bottle of moonshine, according to the testimony presented by the state. Samples of the liquor, which was seized, were offered as evidence, together with statements from state chemists at Madison showing that the liquor contained more than 30 per cent of alcohol.

BANKS LOSE BIG SUMS BECAUSE OF MISUNDERSTANDING

Outagamie County Bankers Hear Explanation of Campaign of Education

Declaring that banks in this country are subject to much unjust criticism and lose hundreds of thousands of dollars of business yearly because of the prejudice of uninformed people, E. T. O'Brien, of the Citizens bank of Kenosha, chairman of the educational committee of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, showed how the educational program of the bankers association will take the mystery out of the banking business. The talk was given at the quarterly meeting of the Outagamie County Bankers' association Wednesday evening at Kaukauna, following a banquet at 7 o'clock in Hotel Kaukauna.

About 75 men and women, representing 11 of the 20 banks in this county were in attendance. President C. E. Raught presided. Talks were given by William J. Konrad, John J. Sherman and James I. Monaghan of Appleton and Fred U. Torrey of Hortonville. Mr. Monaghan, president of the newly organized American Institute of Banking in this section, told of the advantages of being a member and encouraged men and women in this valley to attend the classes held Monday evening in Appleton Vocational school.

It was agreed to have no other meeting before the annual meeting to be held in Appleton.

"The educational program consists of a series of talks to be given in every school in the county to pupils from the seventh grade up," Mr. O'Brien said. "The plan is well under way now and the county will soon be divided into zones with the names of the teachers in every school on record. Each bank is to take charge of the schools in its vicinity and will make arrangements with the teacher for talks to be given by bankers at intervals.

"Leaflets have already been sent to the bank's outlining a talk for the one who is selected to visit the schools. The idea is to explain the savings deposit, the why and the wherefore of the pass book, the check book, indorsements and a dozen and one other things which so few people know and which form part of the mystery of banking."

"The farmer is the most disgruntled customer we have," declared Mr. O'Brien, "and he has no reason to be so. His mind is filled with the tales by men of socialistic doctrines who declare that farmers are fools for not being bankers."

Such talk, the speaker said, is rampant in farm communities. But he
